Foreign firms contribute nothing to the support of your town. They would not care if every business house in your place should go under. All they want is your money. Why, then, should you patronize them to the exclusion of your home merchant who has a deep interest in every institution in your town? Take the matter home, and ask yourself the question: "Were I in business how would do, get some persom at home to do it. If you wish to buy anything, no matter what, buy it from the home merchant. In this way you will help to build up the enterprises of the town, and keep the money in circulation at home, where itis most needed.

While these remarks are directed to the citizens, they apply with equal force to the merchants. You expect the peoletterbeads, billheads, statements, envelopes, or other commercial work. You have a printing office, perhaps two, well equipped to turn out good work. They need your patronage. You expect them This they take great pleasure in doing. You expect them not only to advertise
